The Equipment

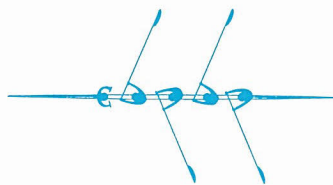

SINGLES

Singles are boats about 26 feet long, 11 inches wide, and weighing some 30 pounds, propelled by one person with two oars sometimes called sculls.

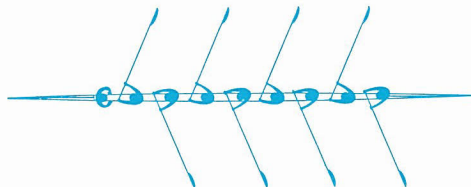

DOUBLE SCULLS

Doubles are boats propelled by two people, each with two oars (or sculls).

FOURS

Four-oared boats have four rowers, each with one oar and a coxswain to steer and cajole them.

EIGHTS

Eight-oared boats have eight rowers, each with one oar, and they have a coxswain. The boat is about 60 feet long and weighs about 230 pounds.

EVENT DESCRIPTIONS

- Youth: Persons under 20 years old, including coxswains.
- Club: Limited to individuals who did not finish in the top six places in any class or event (sculling or sweep-oared), except masters or veterans, in any of the following regattas in this or the preceding calendar year: Canadian Henley, EARC, EAWRC, or Western Sprints, Head-of-the-Charles, any national or international championships, IRA, PAC-10 or Dad Vail, or any national team trials.
- Master (singles): At least 30 years old.
- Master (crew): Rowers' ages average at least 40 years—no one, except cox, under 30 years old.

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the Metropolitan District Commission I would like to welcome you to a splendid New England event: The 23rd Annual Head-of-the-Charles® Regatta.

The Head-of-the-Charles is the largest single day regatta in the world. As you know, every year the Regatta offers intense competition, fascinating strategies and good sportsmanship as over 3,000 rowers compete on the Charles.

Unfortunately, for the past several years, the championship behavior and sense of fair play exhibited on the river has not carried over to the crowd on the riverbanks. Alcohol abuse, open fires, disregard of parking laws and general crowd unruliness have marred the Regatta in recent years. These problems have ruined for many people what should be a day to enjoy one of New England's most colorful sporting events.

In light of these facts, the MDC will be trying something different this year to make the Regatta as pleasurable for the spectators as it is for the athletes. There will be a concerted effort by the MetroPolice to enforce the bans on open fires, alcohol and camping along the Charles. More police will also be on hand for crowd and traffic control. As always, our clean-up crews will be prepared to move in at the end of the day to make sure the riverbanks are as clean as before the Regatta as before it.

But we need your help and cooperation if the Regatta is truly going to be a festive and friendly family affair. If together we can recapture the original spirit of this historic sporting event, once again making the Regatta an enjoyable day for all.

Sincerely,

William J. Geary
Commissioner

In the Beginning

The "Head of the River" is the title which has been awarded annually since 1839 in England to the winner of that nation's famous Head of the River race. This venerable tradition came to the States through the collective initiative of D'Arcy MacMahon and Howard McIntyre who met one evening in December 1964 with British rowing luminary Ernie Arlett and resolved that:

"From the lively interest which has been manifested at the various boat races which have taken place on the Charles River over the years, this meeting is of the opinion that the establishing of an annual regatta, under judicious and respectable management, would not only be productive of the most beneficial results to the City of Cambridge and the City of Boston, but from its peculiar attractions would also be a source of amusement and gratification to the neighborhood and to the public in general."

The first Head-of-the-Charles Regatta was held on October 16, 1965 and is now conducted annually on the next-to-last Sunday of October ever since. The first race attracted nearly 100 boats and was an instant success with the public and rowers alike. The Regatta has since grown to become what is believed to be the largest single day rowing event in the world. In 1973 the founders turned the responsibility for its operation over to the Cambridge Boat Club, which placed it under the trusteeship of three Club members appointed annually by the Club's Board of Directors.

Over the years, the regatta's growth has made it one of the most prestigious in the world of rowing, accelerating as women became more involved in the sports in the 70's. Many events have expanded, others have been dropped, such as the pairs or the rather social "mixed" eights and doubles, due to the need for the more established classes. Even still, the regatta is consistently over-subscribed in every event. In spite of its growth and the seriousness of the competition, the Regatta continues to be a festive and friendly affair. The crisp air, vibrant autumn foliage and furious activity on the water combine to present New England with one of its most colorful sporting events.

The Regatta Today

Individuals, schools, colleges, and clubs from all over the United States, as well as foreign entries from New Zealand, Norway, and Canada will be racing today in Boston. Over 3000 rowers will cover the course. Many of these athletes have been on United States teams in years past, and some will be trying out for the 1988 Olympic Team which will compete in Seoul, Korea early next fall. Club competitors may train with a different intensity than National Team aspirants, and the masters rowers may be slightly older, but competition is equally fierce in these categories. The pure and universal goal of every athlete in every race is to establish a personal best.

Meeting year-round, the Head-of-the-Charles Regatta Committee oversees the multitude of organizational tasks and takes responsibility for the overall safety and fairness of the competition. In doing so it recognizes the jurisdiction that the Metropolitan District Commission exercises over the Charles River and the park land of the banks, and supports their goal of maintaining the resource and spectator welfare. The dynamic growth of the sport and popularity of the races create a need for a greater MDC increased presence this year.

The real lifeline of the regatta is the tireless and enthusiastic corps of hundreds of volunteers who install, sell, stuff, staple, design, mail, nail, bail, buoy, judge, announce, cook, compute, paint, publicize, pick-up, and simply want today to be the best ever. We are eternally grateful for their support and effort.

Rowing, and How to Watch It

No doubt, all the athletes will be sitting down, facing backwards (except for coxswains), and exerting themselves strenuously. What actually happens in a rowing shell? The sculling boats, the singles and doubles, are "blind", and the scullers must look around to negotiate the course and pass others, while at the same time rowing full speed ahead. In sweep-oared boats (fours and eights) the coxswain steers and acts like a coach by communicating position and strategy to the rowers, contrary to the popular notion that they only yell, "Stroke . . . stroke . . . stroke . . ."

The competitors' objective is to get the shell over the 3-mile course as fast as possible by using their energy efficiently and completely. They do not technically pull the oar through the water, rather they plant the oar and move the shell past it. Each stroke accelerates the boat; the slowest point is when the oar is released from the water. Thus an oarsman must not only be strong during the stroke, but preserve the delicate balance to allow the boat to glide between strokes.

There are a couple of things to watch to see how well a boat is moving. First and foremost, the bow number shows where they started on the line-up, so a fast-moving boat will have gained roughly fifteen seconds for each of the lower numbers they have passed. The white rubber ball on the front end, the bow ball, mimics the momentum of the boat. Watch to see if it travels smoothly, or bobs or halts. Strong, fluid, confident stroking wins races. A tired rower may use extraneous motions by wrenching or jolting at the start of the stroke. "Catching a crab" happens when a rower has their oar literally stuck in the water, and will disrupt or even cause a boat to stop altogether.

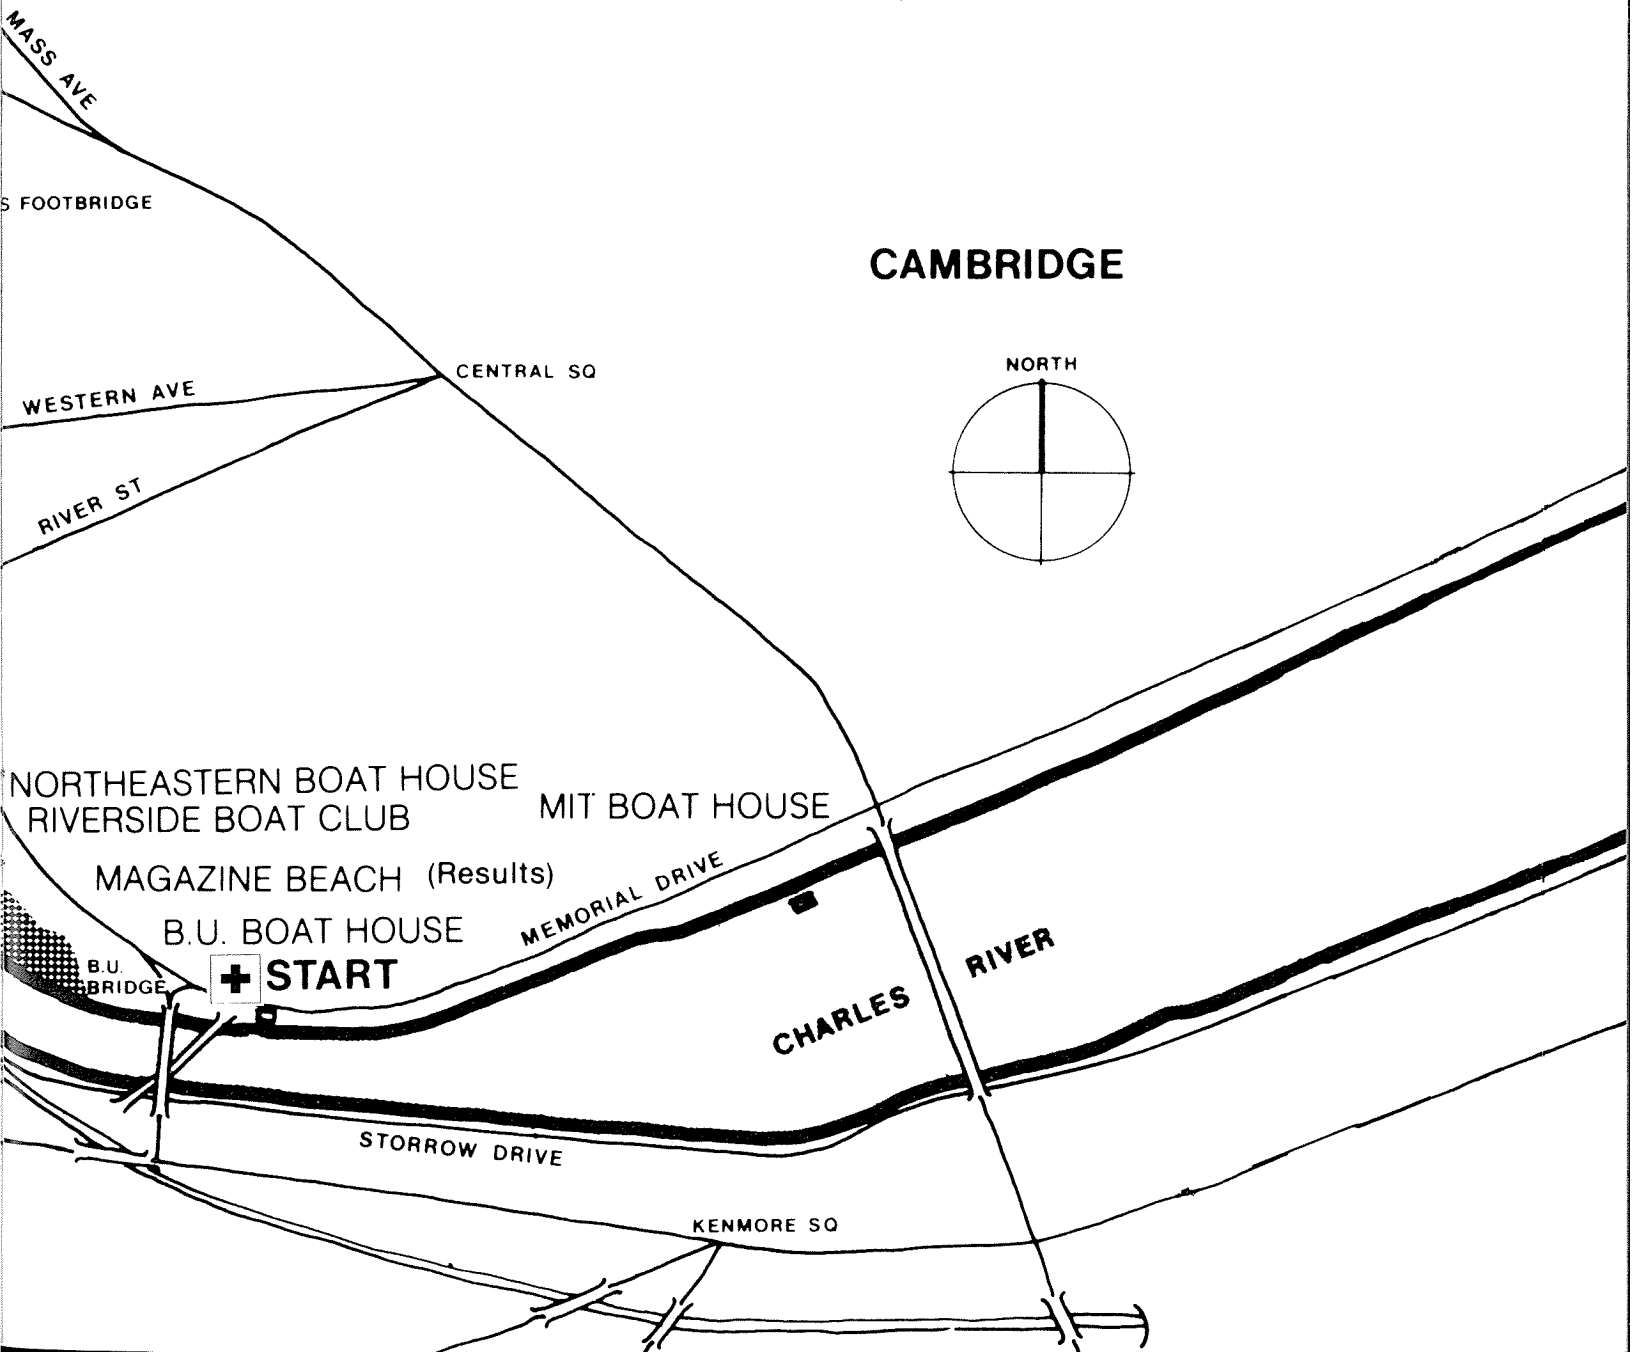

The course on the Charles is three miles long and is renowned among Head races for its twisting progression and many, many bridges. Among crews it is often referred to as a "coxswain's race" because hardened nerves and a keenly negotiated course will mean precious seconds. Excitement builds as three boats approach a bridge that only two fit through. The orange buoys must not be crossed at the risk of a ten-second penalty, but a skillful crew will cut them closely as they pick the shortest distance between two points. Today's races are monitored by the most sophisticated of computerized timing systems, and finishers are often separated by only hundredths of seconds, so every stroke counts!

"Head" Regattas

Since "Head of the Rivers" races necessarily take place on skinny rivers, they are very different from collegiate meets or international championships, which generally take place on lakes where the boats line up across and start at the same time. Head races are several miles long, round corners and pass through bridges, which again is very different from a straight 2000 meter course. Head boats compete against each other indirectly by racing a clock. They line up in order according to numbers on the bow and start at discreet intervals — usually about 15 seconds.

Head races are sponsored in the fall, when long endurance workouts are a key part of a full-year training program geared toward the 2000 meter sprints. A Head race takes about 15 to 20+ minutes, (versus 6+ minutes for the shorter spring and summer races) providing a continuous pageant of flashing blades and team colors for supporters to encourage on.

Because the racing is quite different, luck can play a determining role. Numerous factors that can affect one's final standing in the results: the draw of the line-up, collisions, or bottleneck points. It really would be folly to place excess importance on a singular achievement, but then again, why not?

An aerial photograph of a rowing team in a racing shell on dark, choppy water. The rowers are wearing red and white uniforms, and their oars are visible, dipping into the water. The shell is long and narrow, with a pointed bow and stern.

The Regatta Committee and Trustees acknowledge the hospitality of Boston Univ., M.I.T., Northeastern Univ., and Harvard Univ. in extending their facilities and their equipment to visiting crews.

Sometimes Being Successful Means Putting Yourself In The Middle.

And here at the Embassy Suites® hotel in Boston, that's exactly where you'll be.

We're located where Mass Pike meets Storrow Drive—right across the river from Cambridge, and near Logan Airport, downtown Boston, and Route 128.

All this, and complimentary breakfast too.

Your two-room suite has room for working and meeting—plus three phones and two remote controlled color TVs. You'll even be invited to a Manager's Private Reception.

After work, you'll relax in our indoor pool, sauna, and whirlpool.

Make this business call.

To put yourself in the middle of it all, call 1-800-EMBASSY or (617) 783-0090 for reservations. Or contact your travel planner.
